AOBA Alliance Inc. and Washington, D.C., Restaurant Association Align to Expand Benefits of Constellation Energy Competitive Energy Services

700 Members of Restaurant Association Metropolitan Washington to Leverage AOBA's Collective Buying Power for Electricity, Natural Gas, Renewable Energy Services from Constellation Energy

BALTIMORE, April 1, 2011 – Constellation Energy (NYSE: CEG), a leading competitive electricity and natural gas supplier, today announced it will extend its competitive energy supply to Washington, D.C., area restaurants through an agreement with the AOBA Alliance Inc. (the Alliance) and Restaurant Association Metropolitan Washington (RAMW).

The Alliance, a subsidiary of the Apartment and Office Building Association of Metropolitan Washington, one of the nation's largest customer-based energy aggregation groups, and RAMW have signed a Memorandum of Understanding enabling about 700 restaurants and affiliated businesses in Washington, Maryland and northern Virginia to take advantage of energy services that Constellation Energy offers AOBA. In addition to electricity and natural gas, Constellation Energy offers affordable renewable energy products that help businesses meet sustainability goals.

“We are pleased to have the Restaurant Association Metropolitan Washington's endorsement of the Alliance, who, through its relationship with Constellation Energy, will be its energy provider,” said Frann Francis, senior vice president and general counsel for the Alliance. “The Alliance welcomes the opportunity to assist members of RAMW with procuring electric and natural gas energy supply and other energy related services from Constellation, as well as have RAMW share in the benefits of our expertise and customer representation.”

“We are always on the lookout for new benefits for our members and are excited to be partnering with AOBA and Constellation Energy,” said RAMW President Lynne Breaux. “We look forward to working closely with them in the future.”

“Constellation Energy welcomes this innovative extension of AOBA’s collective energy buying power to share energy savings with hundreds of restaurants in the Washington area,” said Mark Huston, managing director of retail energy for Constellation Energy. “We look forward to delivering the same high level of customer service and streamlined energy procurement to area restaurants that we have been providing AOBA for the past year.”

The Alliance announced in February 2010 that it had selected Constellation Energy as its new energy service provider, giving the Alliance access to Constellation’s resources and expertise. Constellation Energy is the supplier chosen by two-thirds of Fortune 100 businesses, offering such energy service options as energy efficiency projects, installation of on-site solar generation and demand response programs that financially compensate businesses for reducing electricity usage at times of peak demand.

About the AOBA Alliance, Inc.

The AOBA Alliance (www.aobaalliance.com), a subsidiary of the Apartment and Office Building Association of Metropolitan Washington, one of the largest customer-based energy aggregation groups in the U.S., offers the Washington region's building owners and managers the opportunity to assert their collective buying power to achieve savings in the procurement of energy and energy-related services. Since its inception in 2000, the AOBA Alliance has saved participants over $500 million in electric and natural gas costs.
